their fellow-citizens in deploring the death of Judge Lawrence B. Horrigan.

Resolved, That as a member of this society he upheld its principles and purposes by a life of the breadest and most comprehensive charity. His heart was easily moved by the erv of the distressed and the appeal of the sorrowful; and, though inflexible is the performance of duty, he was prompt with tender sympathy for the one and a generous hand for the other.

Resolved, That our Brother Horrigan was an upright judge, an honest manly man, who was not only unawerving in his integrity as to his duty on the bench, but in all that he was called upon to do, whether in private or public life. He was a modest man, and the honors conferred upon him by his fellow-citizens could not swerve him from the simple digniny of a character that rosted securely upon the foundations of duty. To be an uprigh! American was to him to be all a man could be. of. That we mourn his loss, not only as a
